Who We Are

RedMane Technology LLC is an information technology services provider specializing in the development and implementation of large-scale, mission-critical solutions to our clients' business problems. Our expertise extends far beyond mere programming and into the very heart of business itself—where our solutions deliver substantial business value. Our staff is comprised of smart and savvy professionals whose commitment to quality and complete client satisfaction pervades every project we take on. Talented people with years of experience doing what they love in a supportive and collaborative environment—all focused on satisfying client expectations.

That's a formula for success.

Our company size and structure allow us to operate with a dynamic flexibility unmatched in the industry and to respond quickly to the challenges that arise during the course of any project. And our years of experience working together as a team allows us to collaborate efficiently on every new project, to bring to bear decades of combined expertise, and to tackle potential trouble spots as soon as they appear—before they can grow into full-blown problems.
